

University to Offer Fall Course in Social Justice

CANYON, Texas—Grassroots activism to raise awareness and create solutions will be the focus of a new and timely course offering in “Social Justice: Change the World” beginning this fall at West Texas A&M University.

Dr. Lisa Garza, associate professor of sociology, will teach the special topics course, Soc. 3392.01, from 3-4:15 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday during the fall 2015 semester. It's a course based on social movements, and Garza will introduce case studies from the 1950s through the 1970s. Topics will range from the civil rights movement to the anti-war movement. Students also will explore current events and issues while learning about solutions and mobilization.

“Social movements are so important to study, both past and current,” Garza said. “These movements bring about necessary change and bring greater equality in a rapidly changing world.”

The course is open to all, and no prerequisites are required. For more information, contact Garza at 806-651-2593 or lgarza@wtamu.edu.

Priority registration for the fall semester at WTAMU begins April 1 for current graduates and seniors; April 6 for current juniors; April 9 for current sophomores; and April 13 for current freshmen. Priority registration for all students begins April 20. For more information, contact the Registrar's Office at 806-651-4911.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Without public notices in the newspaper, you're left guessing.

Public notice is your right to know about the issues that directly affect your life. And, you can easily find public notices in your local newspaper. Without public notices in the newspaper, you're left to guess about what the government is doing in your community and how elected officials are spending your tax dollars.

Your local newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look ... where to look ... when to look ... and even what to look for in order to be informed about public information. It is the government's responsibility to notify you of public information, and your local newspaper is the most accessible place to find it.

The Pulse

PUBLIC NOTICES IN NEWSPAPERS.
Where public information is accessible to the public.